

From the decree on the ministry and life of priests of the Second Vatican Council By the sacrament of Orders, priests are formed in the image of Christ the Priest, to be ministers of Christ the Head in constructing and building up his whole Body, the Church, as fellow-workers with the order of bishops. In the consecration of baptism they have already received, in common with all Christians, the sign and gift of so great a vocation and grace that, even in their human weakness, they have the power, and the duty, to seek perfection, in accordance with our Lord's words: Be perfect then, as your Father in heaven is perfect.

As they exercise the ministry of the Spirit and of holiness, they are strengthened in the Spiritual life, provided that they are docile to Christ's Spirit, who gives them life and is their guide. By the sacred actions they perform daily, and by their entire ministry in communion with their bishop and fellow-priests, they are set on the way that leads to perfection.

The holiness of priests is itself an important contribution to the fruitfulness of their ministry. It is true that God's grace can effect the work of salvation even through unworthy ministers, but God ordinarily prefers to show his wonders by means of those who are more submissive to the inspiration and guidance of the Holy Spirit, and, who through close union with Christ and holiness of life, are able to say with Saint Paul: I live, but no longer is it I who live, it is Christ who lives within me. —Presbyterorum Ordinis

Twenty-second Sunday in Ordinary Time.

Be doers of the word and not hearers only, deluding yourselves. James 1:22

Helping a teenager stay on task is no easy matter, especially when she's working on a computer hooked to the Internet. I always tell her I can tell if she's working or not by how fast she's typing. If the fingers are racing, that means she is chatting, not working. And it's true.

So I get frustrated with her and talk about her own goals and what she is capable of accomplishing and how she really needs to be more disciplined. I wonder when she will get the picture. And then I look down at my own computer, four or five browser windows open to various blogs and news sites and online magazines. While my word-processing screen with work half-done sits quietly, having been waiting unattended for some time

How can I expect her to do what I've not mastered? How many other things can I speak easily about—like the importance of prayer, charity and love—deluding myself that I don't need a talking-to as well?

Lord, help me confront my own weaknesses..

Why Have Another Child? It

Helps to Populate Heaven

The child that you and your spouse have been generous in accepting from God was created to return to Him, after a life of love, service and obedience on earth, to spend eternity with God in heaven. Our Lord Himself said that there was plenty of room for those immortal souls. There is no overpopulation problem in Heaven!

"There are many mansions in my Father's house."
(John 14:2)

Fr. Damian & Jo will be visiting family in Denver next weekend. They will leave Thursday September 3 and return on Labor Day. Fr. Don McCarthy will be taking First Friday Mass and the weekend Masses.
